

For fuller details including session synopses, please go to our live digital timetable <https://aseannualconference2022shu.sched.com/>

For the most up to date and live Annual Conference 2022 information, please click on the Sched link above. To view the sessions relating to the ASE Futures Group, under Filter By type, select Futures. You can then click on each of the sessions to view their synopses, and also to view presenters' details, or view any files or attachments relating to each session, which speakers sometimes upload after they have presented.
14:00 – 14:55	Blended learning and post-lockdown ITT delivery models and practice How has remote training practice learned during lockdowns strengthened current ITT delivery methods? Led by Pete Robinson and Claire Seeley, members of the ASE Futures Committee	Career progression and support for new teachers The Early Career Teacher Development Programme and other initiatives, and how they are supporting the retention of teachers. Led by Martin Reece, member of the ASE Futures committee
15:00 – 15:25	Break
15:30 – 16:25	How has lockdown affected inequality of student progress in schools? What strategies are schools using successfully to close the gap? Led by Nicola Beverley and Liz Lawrence, members of the ASE Futures committee
4:45pm	The Initial teacher training (ITT) market proposals and review: Where are we now? An exploration of the review outcomes and their implications for ITT provision. Led by Alex Sinclair, Sam Twisleton and Emily Perry, members of the ASE Futures committee,

If you'd like to join our dedicated Futures session on the afternoon of Thursday 6th January, please book a ticket for the day on Eventbrite. The ASE Annual Conference webpage is also full of additional information including social activities and exhibitors – please browse what we are delighted to be offering for 2022! Prices start from £123 for a single day for ASE Members, whilst the Early Bird Offer remains open (until the end of October). And don't forget to view the Street Food and Swing Band social for Thursday evening! For queries, email conferences@ase.org.uk