

Contents

Number 161 | Jan/Feb 2020

3 Focus on ... Technology and science

4 Notice Board

5 Putting the D in STEM: science and design and technology links

Liz Lawrence highlights the importance of meeting all the demands of teaching design and technology when it is often taught alongside science

9 Developing the engineering in STEM

Kate Sutton reflects on her school's journey in engaging children in engineering and technology

13 Top tech tips for teaching about the natural world

Holly Bestley from the Zoological Society of London outlines how technology can help make the most of exploring the natural world

15 Can games help children learn science?

The BBC Education Games team explores how we can use online games to help children build up a foundation of scientific knowledge and develop a sense of curiosity

17 Science Swap Shop

21 Technology in the field – literally!

Rory Galloway describes how everyday technology is used in his role as an agronomist

24 Making the most of technology to explore nature

Steven Lewis-Neill outlines how mobile technology can support teaching and learning in and outdoors

28 Building science capital through Family Science

Andrew Bell shares his story of developing science capital within his school by getting all the family involved

33 Grab a bucket, we're taking science outdoors!

Nicky Bolton describes how Bucket School provides a vehicle for exciting outdoor learning

36 Reviews

Cover: Making the most of technology to explore nature – page 24

Primary Science

Editor Dr Leigh Hoath

Putting the D in STEM – page 5

Developing the engineering in STEM – page 9

Using technology in farming – page 21

Working with tablets outdoors – page 24

Executive Editor Helen Johnson

ASE editorial contact Jane Harrott

Design/page makeup Colin Barker ndd

Advertising Rebecca Dixon-Watmough

 The Association for Science Education